“ To the Ross family,

I'm so sorry for your loss. I know loosing a loved one in death can be one of the hardest things to deal with. I too have lost family and friends in death and have drawn comfort from God's word the bible. Here are two scriptures amongst many that have been especially comforting to me as I hope it will be to you. Isaiah 25:8 and 2 Corinthians 1:3, 4. “ Life takes us on a journey. But no matter how short or long that journey is, we always have a way of impacting someone else's life. I am truly sorry to hear about the passing of Karen (Midnight) Ross. Reflecting back, I can remember when she use to tag along to North Durham school (even though she wasn't old enough to be enrolled in school), with her big sister Plouunk. Age didn't mean a thing to her, she thought she was just as old as we were:-) Some mornings, she would sit in the classroom and drink milk right along with us, until it was time for her to leave. I said this to say, January 23, 2014 was her time to leave this part of her journey, but to those who know her, let the positive impact that she had in your life remain embedded in your hearts. There's a saying, "gone but never forgotten"! I am thankful to have known her.

Allow God to comfort you! There is no greater comforter than the Lord! Be Blessed!

“ Hello Midnight, my girl! you no Midnight, I will miss you, hanging out with you was never boring, I saw you months ago across town, east side, I have not venture that way for a long time. I no, its probably the same old place, it never changes. You no, I was hoping you caught that train as I did, It took me a while, but I did it. I will always remember you, Midnight you were a trooper and survival to the end. I no you are looking down an saying I'm happy now, I'm not cold or do I have to look over my back. The lord has your back now, rest in peace. I love you home girl, Eddle Baine
